

P V
A
W
r
i t
i n
g
P r
o
m
p
t

Element		points
Development Organization Attention to Audience Language	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Writer consistently develops the ideas into a complete, well-developed whole, answering both questions. • Writer purposefully orders ideas. • Writer fully anticipates and answers the audience's needs (audience may include self). • Writer consistently uses language choices to enhance the text and in a manner appropriate to the literary form. 	5
Development Organization Attention to Audience Language	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Writer consistently develops the ideas into a complete, well-developed whole, answering one of the questions. • Writer purposefully orders ideas. • Writer somewhat anticipates and answers the audience's needs (audience may include self). • Writer frequently uses language choices to enhance the text and in a manner appropriate to the literary form. 	4
Development Organization Attention to Audience Language	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Writer partially develops the ideas about one of the questions, but the response is not a complete, well-developed whole. • Writer orders ideas. • Writer to some extent answers the audience's needs (audience may include self). • Writer sometimes uses language choices to enhance the text and in a manner appropriate to the literary form. 	3
Development Organization Attention to Audience Language	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Writer tries to develop the ideas, but the response is not a well-developed whole and is not complete. • Writer orders ideas, but there are some interruptions in the flow of the piece. • Writer attempts to answer the audience's needs (audience may include self). • Writer at times uses language choices to enhance the text and in a manner appropriate to the literary form. 	2
Development Organization Attention to Audience Language	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Writer has not developed the ideas into a complete whole. • Writer shows little purposefully ordering of ideas. • Writer has not anticipated and answered the audience's needs (audience may include self). • Writer seldom uses language choices to enhance the text and in a manner appropriate to the literary form. 	1
Development Organization Attention to Audience Language	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Writer has not developed the ideas. • Writer shows no purposefully ordering of ideas. • Writer has not answered the audience's needs (audience may include self). • Writer does not use language choices that enhance the text and in a manner appropriate to the literary form. 	0