CAREER & TECHNOLOGY EDUCATION

Career and Technology Education programs are offered in middle school, high school, and at two Centers of Applied Technology. Curriculum offerings include Business & Computer Science, Family & Consumer Sciences, Technology Education, Applied Technology, and Internships. Applied Technology offerings are available to high school students at two Centers of Applied Technology. Anne Arundel County Public Schools offers 40 different Career Completer programs which allow students to earn industry certifications and/or college credit. Additionally, a variety of elective courses are offered to provide students with rigorous and relevant opportunities to explore high-tech careers.

The Centers of Applied Technology are Magnet schools committed to providing programs that adapt to new technology and students' employability needs. Students enrolled in the Applied Technology program receive academic course instruction in their home (comprehensive) school, and are transported to one of the centers for the technical courses. The centers provide an environment in which students apply theory and knowledge toward skills proficiency, while practicing safe work habits and professional ethics.

Currently, there are 1,564 students enrolled in career and technology education at the two centers. Center of Applied Technology – North is located in Severn, MD and the Center of Applied Technology - South, is located in Edgewater, MD.

Chesapeake Science Point

In the summer of 2005 Chesapeake Science Point (CSP) became an Anne Arundel County Public School's charter school. CSP is open to all Anne Arundel County Students regardless of academic achievement

CSP opened with a sixth and seventh grade enrollment, and had planned to expand one grade per year until a grade 6-8 configuration was established in 2010. In February 2010 the Board of Education approved CSP's expansion to include grades 9-12, expanding one grade per year. In 2014 the school reached its final 6-12 configuration.

Chesapeake Science Point leases space in a Hanover business park.

Monarch Global Academy

In the summer of 2014 Monarch Global Academy contract school opened in Maryland City. It was intended to relieve overcrowding at three nearby elementary schools: Brock Bridge, Jessup and Maryland City.

Upon opening the school was open to elementary school students only. In 2016 rising 6th graders will attend 7th grade classes at the school. This pattern will continue for the following year until the school is K-8 in 2017.

Monarch Global Academy occupies a new building on Brock Bridge Road.
