

So You Think You Can Teach?

Anne Arundel County Public Schools · Anne Arundel Community College

Are you a career changer with a Bachelor's or Master's Degree who has been contemplating a position teaching in middle or high school?

Attend Anne Arundel County Public Schools' "So You Think You Can Teach" information session to learn more about the requirements for becoming a public school teacher in the state of Maryland. Receive a "realistic" overview of the joys and challenges of becoming a classroom teacher.

Wednesday, November 29, 2017 | 5:30 – 8:30 pm

AACPS Board of Education – Board Room

2644 Riva Road | Annapolis, MD 21401

Participants will have an opportunity to:

- Receive information on teacher certification requirements in the state of Maryland and the application process for both teacher and substitute positions
- Learn about alternative routes to certification for candidates interested in teaching secondary teaching positions, (e.g., Math, English, Social Studies, Science, World/Classical Languages, Technology Ed., ESOL, Family Consumer Sciences), or Special Education, such as the AACPS-AACC Resident Teacher Certificate (RTC) Program and exciting job opportunities
- Receive an overview as to what you can expect as a new teacher
- Hear from hiring specialists, curriculum specialists, and AACC TEACH Institute staff regarding the desired qualities in teacher candidates

To register for this event you must possess a Bachelor's degree or higher and be interested in teaching in our middle schools, high schools, and/or Special Education in any school (K–12).
