Cohort Opportunities in Educational Leadership

Greetings!

Thank you for your interest in Towson University and our Department of Instructional Leadership and Professional Development's (ILPD) graduate programs. We are excited to be able to offer significantly reduced tuition (in some cases, $0) for local educators in both face-to-face and online instructional platforms.

Below, please find our Spring, 2022 Information Sessions. NOTE: All sessions will be on Zoom. During each session you will have a chance to meet ILPD faculty and will learn about courses, tuition, application information, and more! We hope you are able to attend one of these sessions. No pre-registration needed.

Community Engagement and Leading School Change (CESC) PBC Certificate

Research has shown that schools that build on the assets of their communities are able to teach in more relevant ways, support families and children more effectively, and enable more students to learn at higher levels. Participants in this program will learn how to build successful change from the bottom up, empowering students, families, and community members to become the drivers of positive change.

We welcome teams from the same school to apply, so that the projects taken on through the program have multiplied effect. Non-teaching staff such as counselors, attendance monitors, front office staff, etc., are also encouraged to apply. (A Bachelor's degree is required for admission.)

This 4-course, 12-credit program is currently available only as a district cohort; its duration is 1½ years. The courses may be transferred as electives into our M.S. in Transformational Educational Leadership. Courses include:

- Context and Contours of Race and Ethnicity in Public Education
- Understanding Assets of Children, Families, and Communities
- Learning Communities and Organizational Change
- Leadership and Action Research
